LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Dear Teammates,

You can sense that fall is just around the corner. It seemed like a very short summer, but the good news is that the 2019-20 hockey season will soon be in full swing, and that's always a good thing. It will bring forth a new chapter to our great game, introducing new stars, scripting new stories, and offering new memories to cherish and retell in the future.

Before we know it, the Hockey Hall of Fame's Induction Weekend will also be here. We have an outstanding class of Inductees this year: Guy Carbonneau, Vaclav Nedomansky, Hayley Wickenheiser and Sergei Zubov will be inducted in the Player Category while Jim Rutherford and Jerry York will be our Builder Inductees. All have distinguished themselves through their respective careers, and we are very proud that they'll be our newest Honoured Members. The Hall of Fame's Induction Weekend kicks off on Friday, November 15 and concludes with our annual Induction Celebration on Monday, November 18.

In regards to another significant date, the Hockey Hall of Fame D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre marked its 10th anniversary on September 8, 2019. This incredible facility has allowed the archives of the Hall of Fame to expand and to successfully fulfil its mandate of collecting, researching, preserving and promoting historical material from all levels of hockey throughout the globe. I know everyone who has experienced the Resource Centre, from youth groups to researchers to Honoured Members, has been both awed and inspired by the collection. It is equally incredible when you recognize the scope of work that is required from the Resource Centre staff to process and catalogue this massive, growing treasure.

I look forward to meeting up with as many of you as possible as we all come together in November to celebrate the incoming Inductee class.

With my best regards,

Lanny McDonald
Chairman of the Board
Hockey Hall of Fame

HOCKEY HALL OF FAME'S D.K. (DOC) SEAMAN HOCKEY RESOURCE CENTRE REACHES 10-YEAR MILESTONE

Hockey Hall of Fame

▲ The D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre is located within the four-pad arena complex at 400 Kipling Avenue in Toronto, a multi-purposed facility that also serves as the practice facility for the Toronto Maple Leafs and Marlies, as well as offices of Hockey Canada and the NHL Alumni.

On September 8, 2009, the Hockey Hall of Fame celebrated the official ribbon cutting ceremony to open the D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre. Funded, in part, by contributions from the Seaman Hotchkiss Hockey Foundation, the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), the Department of Canadian Heritage and ten individuals who formed the 'HRCFA Founders Committee', the facility was named in honour of the late Daryl K. (Doc) Seaman, one of the founding owners of the Calgary Flames and a long-time benefactor of grassroots hockey development in Canada.

At three times the size and offering over 10 times the storage capacity of its previous location within the Hall's premises at Brookfield Place in downtown Toronto, the 18,000 square-foot, state-of-the-art D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre encompasses a space the size of an airplane hangar to: access, catalogue, research, preserve and store items not currently on display in the museum or via outreach exhibits; process and house the rapidly growing number of incoming artifacts from around the world; develop and prepare hockey themed exhibits and interpretive programs, such as the Hall's post-secondary online course offering titled "Hockey Hall of Fame Presents", and the recently launched remote learning program for indigenous classrooms via "The Larry and Judy Tanenbaum Family Legends of Hockey Scholars Fund" (see Partnership Brief on pages 8-9); as well as facilitating a more robust and accessible exhibit outreach program in order to reach a wider market, which includes approximately 100 different destinations annually.

The large footprint also features a theatre/lecture room for presentations, grassroots hockey development programming including instructional clinics, and high performance and sledge hockey events in conjunction with the adjacent ice facilities. For these and other purposes, a portion of the office space is subleased to Hockey Canada.

Within the archives, hockey-related materials are stored in 75, 15-foot-long high-density rolling-storage units. Here, researchers will find the world's largest collection of hockey resource materials, including over 26,000 books, programs and media guides, historical documents, more than 10,000 individual player files, approximately 10,000 individual team, league and trophy files, and at least 500 binders of hockey cards, tickets and team schedules, plus treasured equipment from all levels of the game.

When visitors tour the D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre, they are greeted by a view of the world's largest hockey stick collection. At any given time, the racks hold up to 5,000 milestone and championship hockey sticks, all meticulously tagged with the name of the player who used it, his or her team, the date and the stick's significance.

In a climate-controlled room sits the world's largest photo archive devoted solely to hockey. In the 'Cold Room' are more than three million photos, including over two million negatives, slides, transparencies and digital images, 1,000 glass-plate negatives, 32,000 photographs and over 4,000 film reels, all contained in seven 17-foot-long stacks and shelves.

The 'Digital Archive Centre' is used to scan photos, negatives and slides and to digitize film/video footage. The Resource Centre is equipped with photo-editing software and state-of-the-art scanners and printers. More than a million digital images available for the media, publishers and licensees are housed via the Hall's "IMAGES ON ICE DIGITAL PHOTOGRAPHY SERVICE" ("IOI Service"). This system supports the Halls' role as the "Official Photographer of the International Ice Hockey Federation", enabling the dissemination of images for each of the five top tiered Men's and Women's World Championship events. This archive alone has reached nearly 800,000 images, increasing by roughly 60,000 annually.

As experts in the field of archiving hockey history, the investment in technology at the D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre facilitates the Hall's capacity to digitize photography and film/video and to administer content/collections management systems. This has turned into long-term savings for the Hall, but also a new revenue source, as organizations and other museums are now able to secure the Hall's services. Examples include over 8,000 hours of IIHF archival video footage and approximately 500,000 "Hockey Canada Images" via the IOI Service.

In addition to serving thousands of correspondents, media, administrators, teams, players, fans, students, teachers, museums and libraries each year, the D.K. (Doc) Seaman Hockey Resource Centre is the fabric of the Hockey Hall of Fame, playing an integral role in the planning and development of the Hall's exhibition, outreach, fundraising, licensing and charitable activities.

Today, the Hockey Hall of Fame prides itself on having hockey's premier resource centre and archive facility. As the game of hockey continues to grow, so too does the Hall's collection and its responsibility to preserve the game's rich history for generations to come.

Recent ACQUISITIONS

A LIFETIME CREDENTIAL

After having won the Stanley Cup in 1918 as the Arenas and in 1922 as the St. Patricks, Toronto's professional hockey club was renamed the Maple Leafs in 1927 when the franchise was purchased by a group that included future Hockey Hall of Fame Honoured Member Conn Smythe. Smythe literally rebuilt the franchise, including the iconic Maple Leaf Gardens, which opened in November 1931, and led the team to their first Stanley Cup championship that season as the Maple Leafs.

Fred Robertson was born in Carlisle, England before immigrating to Toronto during World War I. The defenceman went on to a prolific minor professional career, as well as two NHL seasons spent with the Leafs and Detroit Red Wings, the first of which just happened to be during that historic Stanley Cup season of 1932. Members of the Leafs championship squad received a commemorative gold coin from management that also served as a Lifetime Pass to Maple Leaf Gardens. This unique championship artifact, along with a commemorative clock presented to Robertson and his teammates during the 40th anniversary of the victory in 1972 and numerous photos and clippings, were donated to the Hockey Hall of Fame by his son Fred Jr.

GLORIA...

Following in the Washington Capitals footsteps from the previous season, the St. Louis Blues defied all odds in 2018-19 after sitting in last place overall in the NHL standings after Christmas and proceeding to win the franchise's first-ever Stanley Cup title with a thrilling seven-game series victory over the Boston Bruins. Led by a Conn Smythe Trophy performance from Ryan O'Reilly during his first year with the team, and an incredible rookie run from 25-year-old netminder Jordan Binnington, St. Louis celebrated in style to what had become their theme song

Rusky Barton/Hockey Hall of Fame

during the post-season run, 'Gloria,' recorded in 1982 by Laura Branigan. Hall of Fame curators were on hand taking in the celebration and instantly began to collect artifacts to preserve the historic moment. With head-to-toe equipment donated by the team's equipment managers from many of the Blues top stars, including captain Alex Pietrangelo's Cup-winning gloves and stick, veteran defenceman Jay Bouwmeester's jersey and playoff MVP Ryan O'Reilly's Game 7 helmet, which was damaged during the post-game celebrations. In the following days, many Blues fans would also contact the Hall of Fame to ensure we had an original copy of Branigan's 'Gloria' album.

HOCKEY'S UNKNOWN MODEL

Bill Burchmore, a sales and promotion manager for the Montreal-based Fiberglas Canada Ltd. during the late 1950s, designed the original masks worn by Jacques Plante, including the one he was wearing to make history on November 1, 1959. However, what isn't known is the role that sales trainee Al McKinney played in the history-making endeavour. After seeing Plante hit in the face during a playoff game in April 1958, causing a 45-minute delay in the game, Burchmore returned to his office the next day and wrote to Plante with his idea for protecting the goaltender's face. Although Plante was indifferent to the idea, Burchmore recruited a 20-something McKinney to be his guinea pig after work one day and set about making a plaster mold of his face. Following the application, it took 30 minutes to harden and another painful 60 minutes to remove (they would later learn to apply a layer of petroleum jelly before the plaster), leaving McKinney's face somewhat red and raw after the procedure. The mold would go on to form the first masks that Burchmore convinced Plante to try before finally making his own personal mold prior to the 1959-60 season. Some 60 years later, the now 87-year-old McKinney gave his son Scott the famed mold to present to Hall of Fame curators in Toronto and add yet another chapter to one of hockey's greatest innovations.

BELLEVILLE'S MEMORIAL LEGACY

During the 1950s, senior hockey in Ontario was not only alive and well, but packed arenas saw the popularity of the game reach its pinnacle. Along with playing for an Allan Cup title, the national champion would go on to represent Canada at the following year's World Championship or Olympic Winter Games. The Belleville McFarlands started in 1956 and although the franchise only lasted five seasons, it was a memorable run that saw them captivate the town with their exploits. Playing at the Belleville Memorial Arena, the McFarlands would win an OHA title in just their second season of operation, 1957-58, while also claiming the Allan Cup to become the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's representative for the 1959 World Championship that was held in Czechoslovakia. The McFarlands won all but one of their games overseas during the spring of 1959 to claim the world title. Returning to Belleville, the entire team was hailed as heroes and saluted by thousands for their efforts. Two decades later with a new arena being built in town, the original arena banners saluting their OHA, Allan Cup and World Championship titles were removed and put into storage. It took another 40 years before they resurfaced as the Denyes brothers (Phil, Paul and Andrew), the sons of McFarlands team manager Drury Denyes, donated them to the Hockey Hall of Fame. The historic banners join the original 1959 IIHF World Championship trophy in saluting this extraordinary achievement.

LEONARD "RED" KELLY

Player Category (1969)
July 9, 1927 – May 2, 2019

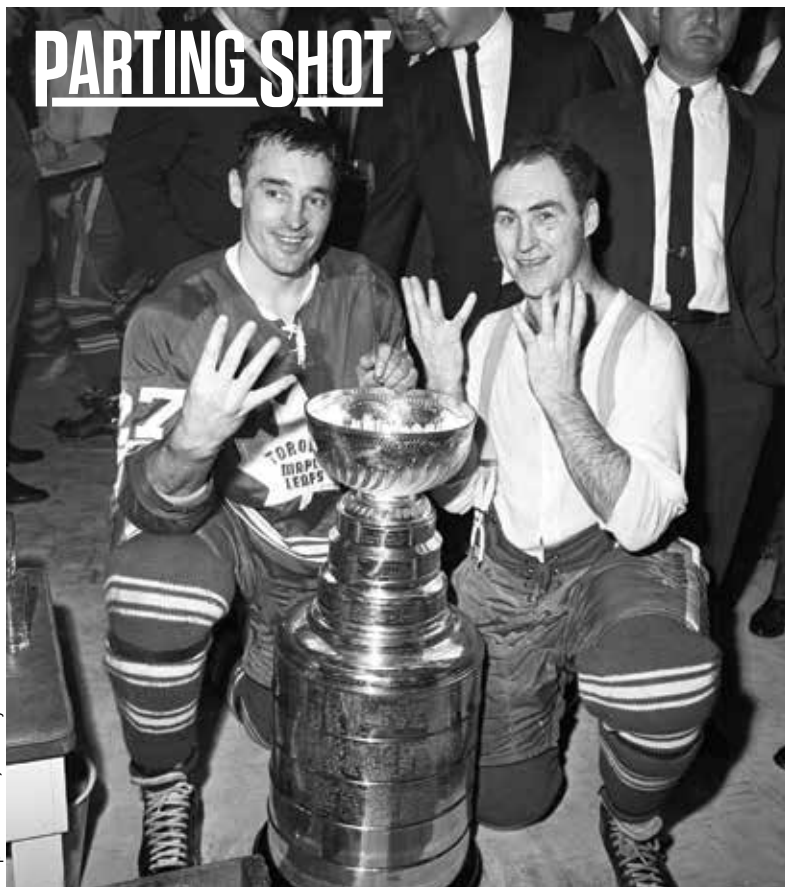

A truly unique player, Leonard "Red" Kelly was versatile and talented enough to be one of the NHL's best-ever defensemen early in his career and a high-scoring centre at the end. He was named to eight all-star teams, was the inaugural winner of the James Norris Memorial Trophy and earned the Lady Byng Trophy on four occasions.

Red played a significant role on two dynasties, as a member of the Detroit Red Wings in the 1950s and later with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the '60s, earning eight Stanley Cup rings in total over his stellar 20-year career.

In addition to his on-ice success, Kelly coached at the NHL level for ten seasons and also served Canada in political office.
